TO THE PUBLIC.

AFTER a lapse of two and an half years, (since the last Director was published,) we again present our fellow-citizens as well as strangers, with another edition of the "BALTIMORE DIRECTOR, FOR 1835—36." We will not dwell on the difficulties of calling at every house in the city to obtain the name, occupation, &c. of the tenant; of arranging all those names for the press; the time necessary, nor the expense of paper, printing, binding, &c.; a little reflection will convince any individual that it is a most arduous as well as unpleasant task; and but one individual here who has performed it once will again attempt it: However, we, with the assistance of Mr. EDWARD ING, and three other gentlemen, whom we have relied on for their known accuracy, industry, and intelligence, have waded through, and here's the book, we hope, as correct as any such publication can reasonably expected. Allowance must be made for the information given by illiterate persons, servants, children, &c. the various spellings producing the same name, &c. We have only printed 750 copies, and will have to charge 25 cents advance from the old price, as we expressed in our prospectus. We offer our thanks to such as have encouraged our publication by subscribing, and pledging themselves to purchase.

We add a Historical Sketch of Baltimore, and a variety of important information, which will be found very interesting not only to the old inhabitants, but to an enterprising and enlightened community generally. R. J. MATCHETT.

HISTORICAL SKECTH OF BALTIMORE.

IN presenting the present edition of our Director to our patrons, we have thought it would not be unadvisable to offer something like a brief view of our city, from its earliest authentic history. In 1659 patents were issued for lands in Baltimore County to a colonel Utie, and it was at this period that it was erected into a county.

In the year 1661, the first county court was held in Baltimore county. On the succeeding year contracts were made for tobacco, deliverable at North Point. Amongst the first settlers north of the Patapsco river was a Mr. Abraham Clarke, a shipwright; so that we find even at this early period of our history, this deservedly popular class of mechanics, among the first to give tone and character, by their industry and enterprise, to that small beginning which has subsequently grown with such giant strides, into a large, healthful, and populous mart of commerce. But to come nearer home, and to develope something which may be considered as looking more like an approximation towards the nucleus of our city, it may be worthy of remark, that Mr. CHARLES GORSUCH, of the Society of Friends, the same year took up and patented 50 acres of land on Whetstone Point. So slow and tardy was the spirit of settlement at this period, that although the purchase money was but 4s the quit rent 4s sterling, per annum, and the alienation 4s sterling per 100 acres, payable in specie, tobacco or other products, the competitors for the proprietary grants were few in number, and applicants for them were viewed in the light of conferring, rather than receiving favors.

The next land within the limits of our city, which was taken up was by Mr. Alexander Mountenay, who took out a patent in 1663 for 200 acres running on either side of what is now called Harford Run. In 1668 Timber Neck, lying between the heads of the middle and North branches of the Patapsco, was patented in the name of Mr. John Howard, and in the same year, Mr. Thomas Cole obtained a patent for 550 acres on the north of that granted to Mr. Howard; which he called Cole's Harbour. This tract extended for a considerable distance on each side of what is now called Jones's Falls, and it was here that the first houses of Baltimore town were built. Mr. Cole left an only daughter, who married Mr. Charles Gorsuch, and they jointly sold Cole's Harbour to a Mr. David Jones, from whom the stream thence took its name, as also Jones's street. which, by the sacrilegious interference of the ministers of the law, has been changed into Front street. We say sacrilegious, because we hold it that the ancient landmarks of towns, cities, and countries, should be cherished with the same reverential regards of family heir-looms.

Mr. David Jones is believed to have been the first actual settler, having built himself a residence on the North side of the Falls, in the neighbourhood of the intersection of French and the late Jones, now Front street, near to where Finn's bridge now stands. Other additions were soon after made to this, what may, in fact, be termed the beginning of our city. Cole's Harbour having, in the mean time, passed into the hands of Mr. James Todd, the step-son of Jones, he sued out a resurvey, and obtained a new patent for it in 1696, by which it was called Todd's Range, and contained 510 acres. Mountenay's Neck, by Mr. Todd's intermarriage with the daughter of Mr. Mountenay also passed into his possession, and he, by the marriage of his mother and self, with two of the principal landholders, became in turn an important personage.

Other additions were now more freely made, and a spirit of acquisition gradually diffusing itself, Mr. Todd and wife disposed of parts of their property to a Mr. John Hurst, who kept an Inn at or near Jones's, and to Mr. Charles Carroll, agent of the proprietary.

Immediately after his purchase, Mr. Hurst mortgaged his property to Mr. Richard Colegate, who, it appears owned and lived on an estate on Colegate's Creek.

In 1711 Mr. Carroll sold 31 acres of his part of Cole's Harbour, to Jonathan Hanson, a millwright, who erected thereon the mill, whose remains are yet to be seen near White's distillery, contiguous to the intersection of Bath and Holliday sts.

In 1726, Edward Fell, a merchant from Lancashire, Eng who had settled on the east side of the Falls, took out an escheat warrant and employed a person by the name of Gist to survey Cole's Harbour or Todd's Range, but a caveat being entered by the sons of Mr. Carroll, a new grant was prevented. The whole number of improvements up to this time, as appeared by Mr. Gist's return of the survey, were 1 mill, 2 dwellings, tobacco houses, orchards &c., and on vacancies 1 other dwelling and tobacco houses &c.

The first Church in the County, is said to have been located at the head of Bear Creek in Patapsco Neck, the Quakers however had previously held meetings at Mr. John Giles's at Upton Court, near Dugan's Ferry Point.

Having thus given a birds-eye sketch of what may be esteemed the "beginning," we must in our subsequent notices of events be still more brief, as our limits admonish us that we have no room for amplification.

In 1705 Baltimore County had become so important by its interests and population, as to require a Sheriff, which office was filled by Mr. Aquilla Paca, and in the succeeding year we find that high dignitary in the person of Mr. Francis Dalahide, so that rotation in office was early engrafted upon our civil institutions,—and would seem to have meant something in those days, we were about to say—but the historical fact, of its lasting but for a year, would seem to require the acknowledgment, that the monopoly of office, the tenacious grasp of power, and the desire of feeding out of the public crib, was one of those vices, which we inherited from our transatlantic fore-fathers; for the term of the successive Sheriff's office, were for three years—a period perhaps, short enough, and indeed may be said to contain the principle of rotation, as it is accompanied by intervals of supervening disqualification.

In 1723 a free school was established in Baltimore County, and an endowment given to it; free schools in other counties having been previously created.

In 1683 ports of trade were established by acts of assembly in Baltimore county, one on Patapsco near Humphrey's creek, another on Bush river, on the town land near the Court House. The next year another town was laid out on Middle river, and two years after, one on Spesucia creek, and another on Gunpowder at Westbury's point, but that on Middle river was suspended. The stranger who takes up our map to look for these towns, instinctively inquires, "Where are they?" and echo answers, "Where are they?"—the historian replies, some lived but on record, and those which were, are now no more.

In 1712 the seat of justice was at Joppa, which continued to be the county town for 50 years from the period of its being established. As late as the first quarter of the 18th century, the produce raised on the borders of the Patapsco was insufficient for the loading of ships in any reasonable time, and they therefore while receiving their cargoes remained off North Point, where they were convenient to receive the productions of other parts of Maryland bordering on our numerous navigable rivers.

In 1733 application was made to the legislature for ground to lay out a town on what is now called Moale's Point, which application was defeated by Mr. Moale, who happened to be a member of that body. The motives which actuated him have been assigned, but as with those we desire to have nothing to do, whether they be selfish or otherwise, we shall content ourselves by saying be they what they may, they were short-sighted and injurious to his interests, and are still felt by his highly respectable heirs, who were thus despoiled of immense values, which otherwise would have ensued to the ample estate of their grand parent.

Disappointed in locating the town on Whetstone Point, on the property of Mr. Moale, the men of that day, to whom we are indebted for our goodly city, defeated in their first project, were not to be thus repressed in their laudable spirit of commercial enterprise; the county commissioners, and others memorialized the legislature to that effect, and in 1729, that body passed an act, entitled, "An Act for erecting a town on the north side of Patapsco, in Baltimore County, and for laying out into lots, 60 acres of land in and about the place where John Flemming now lives.

This indeed looks like a "beginning," of a town in good earnest. Here is the designation of location and object—the "where and the whereabouts."—And we are, therefore, inspired with the curiosity to inquire, where did this veritable personage Mr. John Flemming reside; for that becomes a most important point of inquiry, in order that we may know the chosen spot whereon our ancestors erected those unerring ensigns, around which our ancient townsmen assembled, built unto themselves homes, and laid the foundation of their children's fortunes. Know then, that Mr. John Flemming was a tenant of Mr Carroll, "and resided in a house, then usually called a quarter, standing on the North Bank of Uhler's Run, and near to the residence of the late General John Stricker in Charles street. By this act Baltimore was to be a privileged place of landing, loading, and selling and exchanging goods. As this is a most important event in our history, we shall name the gentlemen first appointed town commissioners: they were Major Thomas Tolley, William Hamilton, William Buckner, Dr. George Walker, Richard Gist, Dr. George Buchannan and Colonel William Hammond, whose appointment was for life, with the power of filling their own vacancies. The law authorized them to purchase the before mentioned 60 acres of land, being part of Cole's harbour or Todd's Range, and to lay the same out in the most convenient manner into 60 lots, to be erected into a town to be called BALTIMORE TOWN, in compliment to the proprietary, who was baron of Baltimore, his title being derived from a sea-port of that name in the county of Cork, Ireland. The first choice of a lot was to be reserved to the owner of the land, and no one to be allowed to take more than one lot for the first four months, nor any but the inhabitants of the county for the first six months, after which, untaken lots might be entered by any one. The right acquired by the purchasers of these lots, was in fee simple, on condition that they erected on their respective lots within eighteen months, a house that should cover 400 square feet; in default of which the right of proprietorship reverted to the commissioners, who were empowered to make a sub-sale on similar terms. In December of the same year, the commissioners contracted with the Messrs Carrolls for the land in question, on the following terms—they were to pay 40 shillings for each of the 60 acres in money or tobacco, at 1*d* per pound. One other condition of the sale from the Messrs Carrolls to the commissioners was, that such lots as were not taken up and improved within seven years, were to revert back to them.

On the 12th of January 1730, the commissioners assisted by M Philip Jones, the county Surveyor, land off the town, "commencing at a point near the northwest intersection of what are now called Pratt and Light sts. and running northwest along or near Uhler's alley, towards the great eastern road, and a great gulley or drain at or near Sharp street then across Long, now Baltimore street, east of the gulley northeasterly with the same road, afterwards called the Church road, and now McClellan's alley, to the precipice which overhung the falls at or near the south-west corner of St. Paul street and St. Paul's lane, then with the bank of the stream southwardly and eastwardly, various courses into the low grounds ten perches west of Gay street, including the Fish street church lot, then due south along the margin of these grounds to the bank on the north side of the river near the south east corner of General Smith's house, and then by that bank various courses, nearly as Water street runs westerly and southerly to the first mentioned point."

On the fourteenth of the same month, most of the lots were taken, but a few however remained untaken at the expiration of seven years and reverted to the original proprietor.

Most of the early settlers appear to have been members of the Society of Friends, who were doubtless attracted here by the prospect of finding in a distant country that respite from persecution for religion's sake, which rendered them wretched at home. Among them we find the families of the Gorsuches, the Gileses, the Fellses, the Hopkinses, the Matthewses, and the Taylorses.

In 1731 the town of Joppa being afflicted with the small pox, the legislature suspended the sittings of the court theer during that year, a circumstance the most unfortunate, as Baltimore was then about to commence the race of rivalry under auspices which at least justified the hope of success, ful competition

A new town on the land of Mr. Richard Colegate was laid out in 1732 and called Jones's town, extending from Pitt to Front street; and has since been known as "Old Town."

It is stated that there were exported from Maryland and Virginia as early as this period, annually, 60,000 hogsheads of tobacco, besides £1000 sterling worth of lumber and skins, employing 24,000 tons of shipping.

As early as 1735 the preservation of the navigation received attention, and masters of vessels were prohibited from casting ballast into any creek or river emptying into the bay, as also into the bay itself, above Cedar Point.

The first brick house was erected in 1740, by an Irish gentleman by the name of Fotterall, who imported the materials. It stood near the north-west intersection of Calvert and Chatham now Fayette streets.

In 1745 the two towns of Baltimore and Jones'Town (now Old Town) were erected into one town by the name of Baltimore town; and the importance into which the town had grown may be conceived from the fact, that the legislature at the same session, in their wisdom, passed a law by which geese and swine were prohibited from going at large—and another law was passed providing for the guage of barrels for pork, beef, tar, pitch and turpentine, the weight of pork and beef in barrels, and the marking of tare on flour barrels. This looking truly like an approach to commercial regulations, and was required by the increased trade of the town.

In 1748, Leonard and Daniel Barnitz, of York, Pennsylvania, came here and erected a brewery on the south west corner of Baltimore and Hanover streets: we mention this as it was the first established in our town; it has been of recent years, succeeded by those ranges of stores on both streets which add so much to the beauty and business of that part of the city.

In this year also, a tobacco house was erected on the west side of Charles street near the head of the inlet into which Uhler's spring emptied. A public wharf was also commenced at the south end of Calvert street, which for a number of years was called the "County Wharf."

The following will show the slow progress which Baltimore had made up to 1752; at which time there were but 25 houses, and only 4 of them brick; and an advertisement in the Maryland Gazette of the same year appears, by which it is made known that a schoolmaster "of a good sober character, who understands teaching English, writing and arithmetic, will meet with very good encouragement from the inhabitants of Baltimore Town, if well recommended."

In 1754 a subscription was got up for building a Market house, and in 1773 the Markets were regulated by law.

In 1754, Mr. Moale, son of the gentleman to whom we have before alluded, built the brick store at the corner of Calvert street and Lovely lane, also the dwelling in the rear of St. Peter's church. Other houses were also built by other gentlemen;—some of them with imported bricks.

In 1756 many of the French neutrals who were expelled from Acadia or Nova Scotia took refuge here, and located themselves on Charles street, south of Market, where they built small houses, which assumed the name of Frenchtown by which name it was designated for many years.

In 1763 other portions of Baltimore County having been added to the town of Baltimore, Fell's Point was also added to it, upon conditions, however which secured her citizens certain exemptions, deemed valuable to them.

In 1768, such had been the increase of the town, and the inconvenience to which the inhabitants were subjected in attending courts at Joppa, that a law was passed authorising the building of a Court house and prison, which were accordingly built, the former where the Battle Monument now stands, the latter adjacent to St. Paul's lane. The former remained until 1818 when the present Court house was completed, the last named was superseded by the new Jail in 1800.

The first engine company was raised in this city in 1769, and remains to this day, bearing now, as then, the name of "The Mechanical Fire Company"—a company which, like those that have been subsequently formed, deserve a warm place in the affections of the people of Baltimore.

The commercial advantages of Baltimore, its fine navigable waters, easy access to the noblest Bay in the world, increased and increasing agricultural productions of this state, and those parts of Virginia of which she was the market, had attracted no inconsiderable portion of commercial and mechanical enterprise and capital hither; and in 1771 we find the names of many of those individuals to whom she was subsequently so much indebted for her prosperity and vigorous growth. The professions of law and physic do not appear to have been so much in demand; for of the former there were but 9, and of the latter in and near the town there were but 11;since then however the facilities of making lawyers and doctors have greatly increased,and with these,each profession has received a large accession of numbers, but whether either science has advanced in the quality of its members, we pretend not to say.

On the 20th of August 1773, Mr. Wm. Goddard of Rhode Island commenced the publication of the first newspaper ever published in Baltimore, called the "Maryland Journal and Baltimore Advertiser. A line of packets and stages at the head of Elk, to and from Philadelphia was established, and a coffee house or hotel opened at the Point.

Up to this period the hills on which the Cathedral now stands, the ground west of Green, now Exeter street, and the south shore of the river from Lee street to the fort point were covered either with forest trees or small plantations, and the grounds between Town and Point were an open common.

The march of the population of the town up to the war of the revolution, 1776, had been a slow one, and this is a circumstance calculated to excite our wonder, because it had enjoyed an increasing commerce for many years, and though its port of entry was Annapolis, its superior adaptation had always secured it a highly lucrative business. But let the cause of this tardiness of increase be what it may, the fact is an undeniable one, that at the commencement of the war of the revolution,our population amounted only to about 5,000 persons;but though small in numbers,they were stout of heart,and throughout the whole of that struggle, evinced a devotion to liberty which knew no medium—a love of country which admitted of no compromise. To the numerical strength of the army, she laudably contributed by sending forth her sons to battle under the Eagle and Stripes; and when the loss of trade brought ruin and distress upon one portion of her citizens, those who were still so fortunate as to have escaped from the inflictions of such visitations, nobly came forward to the relief of their less fortunate fellow townsmen. Nor was this chivalric spirit confined alone to the male inhabitants; for the gentler sex—those lovely beings whom bounteous Providence in his kindness appointed as our solace in adversity—vied with their husbands, brothers, and fathers, in works of generous patriotism, of disinterested, pure love of country. Did the soldier approach them in sickness and want, they nursed him with the tendernes of sisters, and when he departed, it was under feelings too exquisite to give utterance to the measure of gratitude which he felt for those more than "Sisters of Charity"—who with the pious devotion of mothers had pillowed his aching head, bound up his wounds, and nursed him in sickness—but if he could not give utterance to the grateful emotions with which he was inspired, he felt them—exquisitively felt them—and he marched onward more than "thrice armed," because his cause was just," and female beauty and goodness had nerved his arm to strike for liberty.

Among the brave officers who did such effective service in leading the Maryland line through every fortune of war--a line which whether in victory or defeat, always sustained its honor, Baltimore town and county, sent forth her Howard, Gist, Hamilton, W. Sterett, James Winchester, G. Winchester, Ewing, Moore, Croxall, Norwood, Oldam, Colegate, Cromwell, Wilmott, Tool, Riley and McCabe, and with them sent many gallant hearts, who were recruited in the town or its vicinity,--and they sent also, among the officers of the German and rifle companies attached to Smallwood's brigade—to that stubborn brigade, whose insensibility to danger, rendered it incapable of knowing when it was beaten—attached to that brigade, they sent the brothers Mackenheimer, Keaports, Lohra, Meyers, Gerock, Lindenberger, Ritter, Cole, Smith, Fulford, Furnival, Moore, Plunket, R. Smith of W. and Hopkins, with a corresponding number of private soldiers—and this outpouring of patriotism was from a population of 5,000. How these brave spirits bore themselves let the fields of Long Island, White Plains, of Trenton, the Cowpens, Eutaw, and of Yorktown, and, indeed, almost every other field, attest. Wherever danger courted, there were they present—if wounded it was in front—if victorious, mercy to the captive was the only law they acknowledged, and if forced to retreat, it was with their faces to the enemy. At the Battle of White Plains—where an hundred of their compatriots fell,—where many of them fleshed their maiden swords—such was their gallant bearing, that they were appointed to cover the retreat of the army.

In 1781, when that generous Frenchman, whose honored manes repose beneath the soil of his own loved Lagrange, was marching his troops to the seige of York,—on their arrival at Baltimore they were destitute of money, of clothing and provisions, and, as the natural consequence of their sufferings and their privations, broken down in health and in spirits. From the national treasury not a dollar was to be obtained—the military chest empty—and thus situated, Lafayette appealed to our merchants for a loan on his own personal security, the which was granted him with that promptness that generous souls know so well how to estimate. The appeal had been made to that community, who from the beginning of the contest, had, with the hand of prodigals, offered up their means,—whose sons had gone forth, unbidden to the strife, armed with patriots' love and soldiers' courage,—and had the exigencies of the country required it, every male inhabitant, yet remaining, would have rallied under the banners of the brave Lafayette, and marched with him. Nor was this noble gushing forth of patriot zeal confined to the hardier sex. The cloth for clothing for the army being procured, a serious difficulty presented itself, to obtain persons to make it up; but it was of short duration; for it occurred where gentle bosoms throbbed but in unison with the cause of freedom, and the maids and the matrons of Baltimore, turned out en masse, and became for the time, the seamstresses of that gallant army, who on the 19th of October following, carried the redoubts before York-town, and compelled the brave, though haughty Cornwallis, to surrender his whole force; and we would ask, is it a matter of surprise, that this veteran Briton should have been forced by the fate of war, to yield to the prowess of the legions of that "boy," as he contemptuously called Lafayette, when his army was panoplied in garments cemented by the toil of beauteous woman—whose ardent prayers for success had been already heard and registered above?

This unexpected and disastrous turn to the British army, terminated the conflict, and though peace was not finally settled till 1783, the hostile array of bayonets, except in a few instances, where directed by the rancorous hate and subtle cunning of the tories, were then brought to an end. But, though relieved from the pressure of "war's desolation," Baltimore had come out of the contest poor in every thing but the gallantry of her sons, and the priceless virtue of her daughters; but in the possession of these, when backed by that irrepressible enterprise and unimpeached integrity of her merchants, she was truly rich.

In 1782 our townsmen had so far recovered from that paralysis consequent on a state of war, as to turn their attention towards paving the streets, and other regulations connected with building, and the removal of nuisances. A line of stages was also established between this city and Philadelphia. The town at this time contained eight places of worship and is said to have numbered 8,000 inhabitants.

On the 11th of April, 1783, the hostilities between the two countries were formally suspended by Congress, and on the night of the 21st of the same month, the inhabitants of Baltimore town celebrated the joyful event by a general illumination. The barriers to trade being now removed, our citizens were left free to indulge their spirit of enterprise as best comported with their views and interests: and we soon find the inventive genius of our countrymen awakened from a state of lethargy to one of healthful activity. The din of battle had hardly subsided before Mr. James Rumsey, of Cæcil County, of this State, obtained an exclusive privilege from the General Assembly, for making and vending boats to be propelled by steam. In 1787 Oliver Evans's newly invented steam carriage was patented by the state, and the year following, Mr. Cruse erected a steam-mill near Pratt-st. wharf.

As our limits admonish us that we must be brief, we shall pass over many intervening events, and of course omit noticing the creation of many of those civil institutions, which arose out of the growing wants of our people, and only grasp at these more striking incidents which demand a place in a sketch of this kind.

In 1790 the Bank of Maryland was chartered with perpetual powers; this was not only the first bank in this city but in the state. In 1792 the branch of the old U. S. bank, commenced its operations here. The influence of these institutions were soon felt in the increased facilities afforded to commerce, the augmented stir which it imparted to the mechanic arts, and in the general impulse which was given to business in every direction of our town. In this year our population had, in its tardy advance, only reached 13,503 souls; but its ratio of increase was not long destined to remain at this snail like pace; for although we have been four times visited with that dreadful scourge of humanity, the yellow fever, between that period and the year 1800, and in that year also, our population had increased to 26,614, in 1810 to 35,583, in 1820 to 62,738, and in 1830 to 80,622.

In 1796 the city was chartered, and henceforth was governed by a Mayor and Council.

Thus it is evident that whatever had retarded our growth in population prior to the year 1790, had ceased to operate, and that our march was then onward.

The causes which favorably influenced our future growth may not here be an unprofitable inquiry. The seeds of the revolution, which in 1791 were sown in France had been matured into life by those discontented and restless spirits which are to be found in all countries, and without entertaining any definite ideas of rational freedom, the cry of "liberty" had been raised by men who had no precise object in view, as was amply proved by the subsequent indiscriminate slaughter of the aged and the young of all sexes and conditions—and by the sentencing the virtuous and the good to the same fate with the vicious and the depraved. Such butchery—such deluging of streets with human blood, the dissemination of the odious system of morals, and the utter prostration of religion as marked the mad career of the mad actors in this nefarious crusade against human life, soon alarmed the other powers of Europe, and France, revolutionary France, found them as with one arm rallied against her. The whole continent at war with her, and France herself convulsed with a revolution which uprooted all that was holy in the sight of God or man—deluged her territory with its best blood, and suspended the industry of the artizan and the labors of the husbandman. In this state of affairs at home, the brutal advocates of the Guillotine, the Robbespieres, the Marats and the Dantons, and those other sanguinary directors of the whirlwind, which was sweeping every thing righteous and good to destruction and ruin, at home, instigated the slaves of St. Domingo to turn their knives against the lives of their masters. "Liberty and equality"—words which are thrice hallowed in the sight of rational freedom, were rendered odious by those demons in human shape, who perverted them to purposes from which truth, honor, justice and humanity, shrink away in horror and disgust. But in the midst of all this deadly strife—out of the very elements of evil, good ensued to us. The whole continent of Europe in arms; America became its carriers,—and Baltimore in the rivalry which ensued for the rich boon, which was thus presented, became a successful and most fortunate competitor. Our clippers—those winged messengers of commerce, whose speed have given to our shipwrights an enviable name in every clime—were seen whitening the entire coast of France—and the insurrectionary West India colonies were alike the objects of their enterprise.

To these causes must we date that sudden change in the tide of events which led on to our fortune. Our proximity to the revolted Islands—the fleetness of our vessels, the enterprise of our merchants, the skill of our mechanics, all combined to throw the entire trade of supplying both France and them, into our possession. The shipwright, the blacksmith, the rope maker, the sail maker, and every other trade connected with the construction and fitting out of vessels, were put under immediate contribution, and the busy hum and bustle of active industry was to be seen and heard in every direction. Vessels of all sizes—houses of all descriptions, as with a magic wand, were created. Commerce, with its invigorating effects, was pouring in upon us from every quarter, and with it came an influx to our population, which put to blush all former calculations upon the ratios of increase. Thus enjoying these enviable advantages, our town rapidly advanced in wealth and population, in despite of the dreadful visitations from the yellow fever in 1794, 7, 9 and 1800, '19 and '20. During the revolution of France and the insurrection of her colonies, we received many valuable emigrants from each; for the peace-loving citizen of the one, as well as the exile of the other, sought an asylum here from the turmoil and blood, which rendered their remaining in either insecure.

But these halcyon days of commercial prosperity were not to be enjoyed without jeoparding the future peace of the country. Collisions between us and England arose out of our commerce with France. She assumed pretensions, and asserted rights, not justified by the laws of nations, nor sanctioned by that spirit of liberty so cherished by our people. Those collisions led to the war of 1812, which, however, was not resorted to until the cup of forbearance was drained to the very dregs; and unfortunately for the country, not until the national coffers were empty. But freemen who know their rights, never calculate the cost when their national honor is insulted, and we entered into that conflict with little else than a good cause and brave hearts to carry us through. And Baltimore, whose uncompromising hostility to the enemy, whose gallant privateers had met and conquered British merchantmen in every sea, excited the hatred of the government to that degree that our city was marked as an object of vengeance. Our bay infested with a large and well appointed fleet, conveying a well disciplined army; our government is applied to for succor; but Baltimore is told there is no means in the possession of government, and thus she was thrown upon her own resources for defence. The occasion was full of danger and of peril—but our citizens proved themselves equal to it. The means were raised and the city successfully defended, and that enemy, who, bending beneath the laurels gained on European fields, was forced to retire before our works, defended almost exclusively by militia.

The war having been ended by the treaty of December, 1814, and the intercourse between the two countries resumed in February 1815, a too unguarded enterprise succeeded, and commercial speculation and daring was carried so far that in 1819, one of those relapses ensued, which palsies the energies of whole communities. We suffered from it with an intensity that has taught us a lesson which at least should make us wise by the force of the most melancholy experience. In 1825 we sustained another revulsion, and the derangement of the monetary operations of 1833, was also to us a sore affliction; but owing to a healthful pre-existing condition of our people, arising, perhaps, from the wisdom they had learned in 1819, the failure of the Bank of Maryland, the suspension of several Savings Institutions, and of two Insurance Companies, intimately connected with the moneyed concerns of the city, Baltimore has stood it all like a strong man, and is at this day enjoying a business, which vouchsafes to her citizens ample reward for all their toil, industry and capital.

Since the period of the French revolution, many valuable institutions have grown up among us. Churches dedicated to the service of the Most High, a new and splendid Court House, private charities, Jail, Penitentiary, Exchange, Masonic and Odd Fellows Halls, Banks, Insurance Companies, Turnpikes, Rail Roads, and in fine nearly all that the wants of our people required have been provided;—and now, with our Rail Roads and Canals in progress and completed, seeking the West and the East and the South, through valley and over mountain, in every direction; with our noble bay and its countless tributary streams, affording on their bosoms the mediums of conveyance, we are overcoming space and inviting trade from every point of our immeasurable country, and Baltimore may, in truth be said, to be on the great highway which must ensure her a proud eminence among the family of American cities. But if it would not be amiss, we might here observe, that if we desire to make our market as acceptable to our Western, Southern and South Western Merchants, as its local position entitles it to be, more capital must be invested in foreign commerce. Packets to England and France should be established, and this alone will attract capital from other places to our doors, to be invested in that peculiar branch of trade; the increased facilities of transportation will assuredly divert to our port a portion of that foreign capital, and those foreign agencies, which have built up New York, and placed it a century in advance of her sisters.—Whilever we draw many of our supplies from second-hand sources, it will continue to operate to our prejudice, and render us secondary, when our situation would indicate our enjoyment of a relation far more acceptable to our patriotism and our pride.

CITY OF BALTIMORE:

OUTLINES OF THE CONSTITUTION OF MARYLAND.

The Constitution of this State was first formed in 1776; since which time many amendments have been made.

The Legislative power is vested in a Senate, consisting of 15 members, and a House of Delegates, consisting of 80 members; and these two branches united,are styled the General Assembly of Maryland

The members of the House of Delegates, four from each county, are selected annually by the people, on the first Monday in October; and the members of the Senate are elected every fifth year on the third Monday in September, at Annapolis, by electors who are chosen by the people on the first Monday of the same month of September. These electors choose by ballot 9 Senators from the Western Shore, and 6 from the Eastern, who hold their office five years. The executive power is vested in a Governor, who is elected annually on the first Monday in January, by a joint ballot of both Houses of the General Assembly. No one can hold the office of Governor more than three years successively, nor be eligible as Governor until the expiration of four years after he has been out of that office. The Governor is assisted by a Council of five members, who are chosen annually by a joint ballot of the Senate and House of Delegates The General Assembly meets annually (at Annapolis) on the last Monday in December. The Council of the Governor is elected on the first Tuesday in January; the Governor nominates to office, and the Council appoints.

The Constitution grants the right of suffrage to every free, white, male citizen, above 21 years of age, having resided twelve months within the state and six months in the county, or in the city of Annapolis or Baltimore, next preceding the election at which he offers to vote.

The Chancellor and Judges are nominated by the Governor, and appointed by the Council; and they hold their office during good behaviour.

[The Legislature formerly met on the first Monday in Dec., and the Governor was elected on the 2d Monday of Dec.; but the Constitution was altered at the session of 1823, and confirmed in 1824.]

Medical College, Lombard st between Paca and Green—see next pa

THE UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND

Has four faculties, viz. divinity, law, physic, and the arts and sciences. The building, of which a correct delineation is herein given, is situated at the intersection of Green and Lombard streets—entrance from the latter. The premises are enclosed by a brick wall 10 or 12 feet high. The front of the building forms a handsome perystile of eight columns of Grecian Doric, in imitation of the Pantheon of Athens. The rotundo which stands in the rear of the front, is a handsome structure. It has an amphitheatre of 60 feet diameter, capable of accommodating 1000 persons. The lectures are delivered there. It has of late been highly decorated with fine paintings. The library, philosophical and chemical aparatus, as well as the cabinet of anatomy, are not surpassed in the United States. Medical professorships—Nathaniel Potter, M. D. pathology and practice of medicine; Richard Wilmot Hall, M. D. obstetricks and diseases of women and children; Julius T. Ducatel, M D. chemistry and pharmacy; Robert Dunglison, M. D. dean of the faculty. The lectures in the medical department on the last Monday in October. This institution was incorporated in 1812. Being the property of the State, its affairs are managed by a board of trustees, of which the governor is president ex-officio.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

The Washington Monument was raised in honour to the memory of General George Washington. It is placed at the intersection of two squares, one called Washington Place, runs from north to south, being a continuation of Charles street, and is limited by Centre street on the south, and on the north by Madison street. It is 150 feet wide and 744 long. The other space is called Mount Vernon, and runs east and west. It is limited by St. Paul street on the east and Cathedral street west, and is 200 feet in breadth and 744 feet in length. When these spaces shall be adorned with appropriate rows of trees, as well as embellished with marble fountains or basins, and other ornaments, of which this place is so susceptible, it will become one of the most delightful promenades on this continent. The ground on which this superb monument stands, as well as the spaces above mentioned, was presented to the city for the noble purpose to which they have been devoted, by the late colonel J. E. Howard, formerly governor of this state.

This monument is built on an eminence of 100 feet above tide, and consists of a square base of 50 feet by 20 in height, having eleven marble steps on each side, to reach an entry into the basement. A square pedestal of 21 feet and 7 in height, is raised on the preceding base, and the column, whose exterior surface is perfectly smooth and without ornament, stands on this pedestal. It has 20 feet diameter at its base, and 14 feet at its summit; on which rests, the colossal statue of the Father of his Country. The whole height from the ground is 176 1-2 feet. It is all built of white marble, from the quaries of this country, and has a circular flight of 228 steps to the top, in the interior of the monument. The design was furnished by Mr. Robert Mills, architect. The statue is 16 1-2 feet high, although it appears from below of the natural size; it weighs 7 tons and cost $7500 to carve it, and between 2 and $3000 to raise it; Signior Andre Causici, was the sculptor.—Varle's View of Baltimore.
